

John is a software engineer. He loves programming and often works late into the night. John's favorite programming language is Python, and he is very skilled at it. He enjoys solving challenging problems and has built several applications in Python. John is also an avid reader. He often reads books about technology and science.